Mr. Jan van Tilburg, founding partner of the firm, explained that experience and quality should not be diluted if it is not in the interest of the client. "Providing top quality advice requires a strong connection and good communication between client and advisor. We acknowledge that it is not in the client's interest to perform time consuming investigations with regard to alternatives where an experienced consultant with knowledge of the organization would know beforehand that either it simply does not work or it has no potential within the context of that business," he said.

As a specialists tax firm not being part of an audit organization, Fisconti is not hindered by the stringent rules regarding auditor's independence. Jan van Tilburg said: "Fisconti can genuinely look after its client's interest without the hesitation, restrictions and pre-approval procedures that go in the present times with being part of an audit firm".

Jan van Tilburg also created Corporate Tax Alliance (www.corptax.org), an international network of tax consultants sharing the same principles. "Being a member of the CTA means that we can combine the benefits of a high quality network with the vast advantages of a small dedicated tax firm," Jan van Tilburg added.
